
The Judiciary State of Hawai'i

2012 Annual Report

The mission of the Judiciary, as an independent branch of government, is to administer justice in an impartial, efficient and accessible manner in accordance with the law.

I am pleased to present our 2012 Annual Report. This report details the work of the Judiciary during the past year. As an independent branch of government, the Judiciary's role is to administer justice in an impartial manner, free from outside influences.

This report reflects the dedication of the men and women who work in the court system. Each day, these employees work toward fulfilling our mission, knowing that what they do may have far-reaching impacts upon people's lives. I am proud of our employees' work and extend to them my heartfelt thanks and appreciation. I also thank another valuable part of our Judiciary family—the many volunteers who unselfishly give their time and talent to serve the people of Hawai'i.

On behalf of the Judiciary, I also extend our sincere appreciation to the Legislature for its continued support of our budgetary needs and legislative initiatives. We pledge our continued commitment to working with the Legislature and the Executive Branch to build a dynamic and progressive judicial system. Our mutual quest for excellence depends on our cooperative and collaborative efforts.

Supreme Court Convenes for the First Time at a High School

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Stephen Tsushima (at lectern) answers questions from the justices during oral argument at Farrington High School.

For the first time, the Hawai'i Supreme Court convened at an O'ahu high school. The justices heard oral arguments to give 200 students from Farrington and Mililani High Schools a better understanding of how the legal process works.

To prepare for the oral argument, the juniors and seniors studied a curriculum developed by the Judiciary History Center. They also participated in a moot court with assistance from volunteer students at the William S. Richardson School of Law.

After oral argument, there were two separate question-and-answer sessions for the students; one with the attorneys and another with the five justices.

Youth Services Available at Hale Hilina'i

On February 7, 2012, Hale Hilina'i (house of trust, resilience and reliance) was formally opened and blessed as a place where young people at risk learn how to make good choices by providing a diversity of services.

The new center, which was formerly the Juvenile Detention Center, and the services provided there, is a step towards a juvenile justice system that relies less on secured detention and more on alternatives that empower youth to make positive changes in their lives.

First Circuit Senior Family Court Judge Mark Browning tells the audience that he is amazed at the facility's transformation.

During the ceremony, the Hawai'i Community Foundation was recognized for its financial support. The organizations providing the services are: the Community Assistance Center; CARE Hawai'i; Hawai'i Counseling and Education; Surfrider Spirit Sessions; Alu Like; Hale Kipa; the Service Learning Partnership; Hawaii's Families as Allies; and the University of Hawai'i at Manoa School of Agriculture.

Kealakehe Selected as Site of Future West Hawai'i Court Complex

On March 29, Chief Justice Mark Recktenwald announced that the judiciary complex for West Hawai'i will be built on a site across the street from the West Hawai'i Civic Center. The Chief Justice's selection was made after an extensive environmental review of seven candidate sites.

The 10-acre parcel is owned by the State and is located at the intersection of Kealakehe Parkway and Ane Keohokalole Highway. Preliminary plans are for construction of a 142,000 square-foot facility to be completed in 2017.

Access to Justice Briefing Held for Leeward Residents

On the evening of December 11, Leeward area residents attended a community briefing at the Wai'anae District Park to hear representatives from the Hawai'i State Judiciary, the Access to Justice Commission and legal service providers discuss access to justice issues.

Area residents gathered at Wai'anae District Park to hear about access to justice initiatives and to dialogue with the panelists.

In attendance were Chief Justice Mark Recktenwald, Associate Justice Simeon Acoba, State representatives Della Au Belatti and Jo Jordan, State Senator Maile Shimabukuro, Hawai'i State Bar Association President Carol Muranaka, and William S. Richardson School of Law Dean Avi Soifer.

The purpose of the event was to educate the public about the importance of equal access to justice, assess the problems low- and moderate-income people face in gaining access to the civil justice system, and increasing awareness of legal rights and resources for legal assistance.

Chief Justice Recktenwald spoke about the Judiciary's efforts to improve access to the judicial system, including the implementation of self-help centers and access to justice rooms, and establishing the Commission. Justice Acoba, representing the Commission, addressed the Commission's functions, the role lawyers play, and gave examples of some of the Commission's initiatives such as the Foreclosure Mediation Pilot Project.

Representatives from the Domestic Violence Action Center, Hawai'i Appleseed Center for Law and Economic Justice, Legal Aid Society of Hawai'i, Native Hawaiian Legal Corporation, and Volunteer Legal Services Hawai'i made brief presentations and met with audience members after the program.

Three additional community briefings were held in 2012; one in Makiki on O'ahu, one on the Windward side of O'ahu, and one on Maui.

Families and Family Court Celebrate Adoption Day

Judge Browning encouraged the children to pick any toy that caught their fancy.

On December 26, six O‘ahu Family Court judges finalized 43 adoption cases, formally ensuring that 53 children – ranging from six months to 18 years of age – became permanent members of a loving family before the end of 2012.

Senior Family Court Judge Mark Browning and Judges Jennifer Ching, Lanson Kupau, Christine Kuriyama, Paul Murakami, and Catherine Remigio cleared their schedules to handle the adoptions.

Judge Browning scheduled the adoption day event to have as many families as possible start 2013 with “official” permanency. “Another reason is that family court judges and staff deal with a lot of tough and heart-wrenching cases,” he said. “But adoptions are uplifting and a positive way to end the year.”

Family Court employees decorated the courtroom doorways and counters with multi-colored balloons and festive signs proclaiming, “Adoption Day.” They also donated toys and made paper leis for each adopted child and their siblings.

31 Judges Evaluated on Courtroom Performance

Chief Justice Mark Recktenwald released the summary results of performance evaluations for three Appellate Court justices and judges, nine Circuit Court judges, nine Family Court judges, and ten District Court judges. The results contained in the Judicial Performance Program 2012 Report show that most attorneys believe the judges performed well.

To ensure the security, anonymity, and confidentiality of the evaluation process, the process was administered by Hawaii Information Consortium, which is completely independent of the Judiciary.

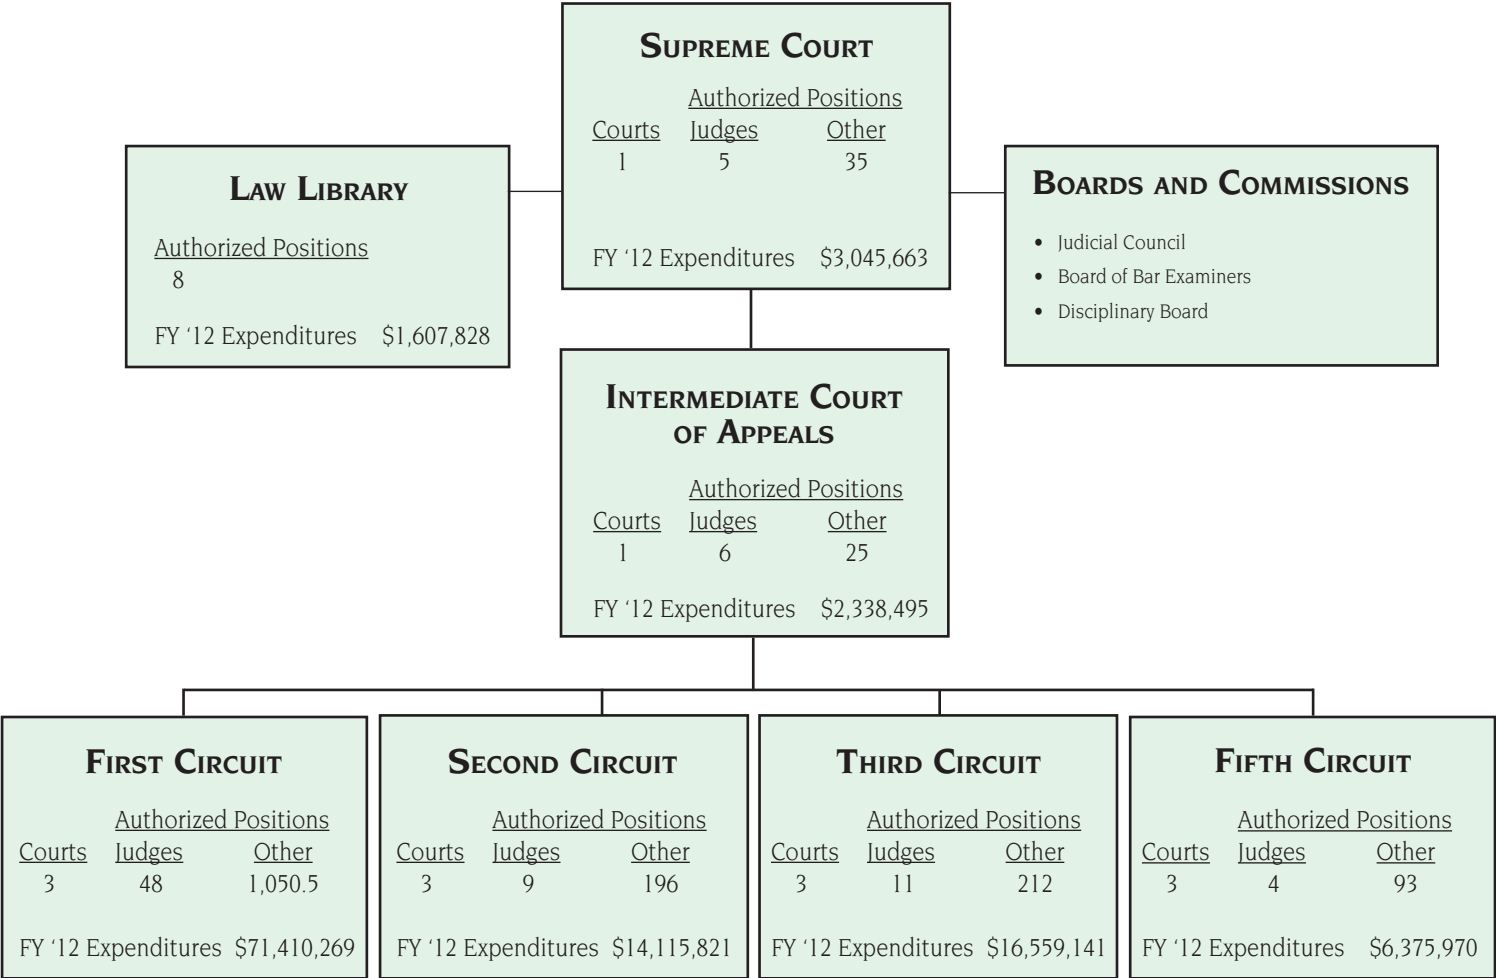

The three Appellate Court justices and judges had mean scores of 4.5 in the Fairness/Impartiality section, 4.1 in the Written Opinions section, 4.5 in the Oral Argument section, and 4.0 in the Overall Evaluation section. Scores in the Appellate Court were based on a scale of possible responses ranging from one, for Never or Poor, to five, for Always or Excellent.

Supreme Court

The Supreme Court of Hawai'i is the State's court of last resort. The Supreme Court hears appeals that are properly brought before the court upon applications for writs of certiorari to the Intermediate Court of Appeals and applications for transfer from the Intermediate Court of Appeals.

The Supreme Court also:

- hears reserved questions of law from the circuit courts, the land court, and the tax appeal court;
- hears certified questions of law from federal courts;
- hears applications for writs to judges and other public officers;
- hears complaints regarding elections;
- makes rules of practice and procedure for all state courts;
- licenses, regulates, and disciplines attorneys; and
- disciplines judges.

Each appeal is decided on the basis of the written record. In some cases, the court may hear oral arguments. The court takes no evidence, except in original proceedings. Each justice, or a substitute from the Intermediate Court of Appeals or the Circuit Court, participates in every substantive matter before the court.

The Supreme Court is composed of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices. Justices are nominated by the Governor from a list of not less than four and not more than six names submitted by the Judicial Selection Commission. A justice's nomination is subject to confirmation by the State Senate. Each justice is initially appointed for a ten-year term. To be considered for appointment, a person must be a resident and a citizen of the state and of the United States and licensed to practice law by the Supreme Court of Hawai'i for not less than ten years preceding their nomination. After initial appointment, the Judicial Selection Commission determines whether a justice will be retained in office. A justice may not serve past age 70.

The members of the Supreme Court are Chief Justice Mark E. Recktenwald and Associate Justices Paula A. Nakayama, Simeon R. Acoba, Jr., Sabrina S. McKenna, and Richard W. Pollack.

Judges are nominated by the Governor from a list of not less than four and not more than six names submitted by the Judicial Selection Commission. A judge's nomination is subject to confirmation by the State Senate. Each judge is initially appointed for a ten-year term. After initial appointment, the Judicial Selection Commission determines whether a judge will be retained in office. A judge may not serve past age 70.

The Intermediate Court of Appeals has discretionary authority to entertain cases submitted without a prior suit when there is a question of law that could be the subject of a civil action or a proceeding in the Circuit Court or Tax Appeal Court, and the parties agree upon the facts upon which the controversy depends.

Cases in the Intermediate Court of Appeals may be transferred to the Hawai'i Supreme Court upon application to the Supreme Court under circumstances set out in the Hawai'i Revised Statutes. The ICA's Judgments on Appeal and dismissal orders are subject to the Hawai'i Supreme Court's discretionary review by way of an application for a writ of certiorari.

Family Courts

STRATEGIC MISSION

The mission of the Family Court is to provide a fair, speedy, economical and accessible forum for the resolution of matters involving families and children.

DESCRIPTION

The Family Courts were established by statute in 1965 to deal with virtually all legal problems impacting Hawaii's families and children.

The Family Court hears all legal matters involving children, such as delinquency, waiver, status offenses, abuse and neglect, termination of parental rights, adoption, guardianships and detention. The Family Court also hears traditional domestic relations cases, including divorce, nonsupport, paternity, uniform child custody jurisdiction cases and miscellaneous custody matters.

District Family Court judges are appointed to six-year terms by the Chief Justice from a list of at least six names submitted for each opening by the Judicial Selection Commission, subject to confirmation by the State Senate.
